AT THE POINT OF THE BAYONET.

BOERS DRIVEN AT EVERY PLACE.

While the Artillery Duel Was in Progress the Sussex and Lancashires Charged and the Enemy Fled in Rout--Crossing the Zand River--Boers Fighting as They Fall Back.

By Wire to The Telegram.

London, May 11. — Lord Roberts cables under date of yesterday from Pietz Prit: "Have had a successful day, having driven the enemy from point to point. French, with a cavalry brigade and mounted infantry, after crossing the Zand river, worked around in a northeast direction, opposed continually by the enemy. Pole-Carew's division crossed the river at a drift near the railroad bridge, and my headquarters accompanied this portion."

In military circles this is considered one of the cleverest movements of Roberts' strategical plans. French's movement was evidently for the purpose of protecting the main division in crossing the Zand.

Press reports from Piet river, dated yesterday, state that the Boers were driven at the point of the bayonet by the Royal Essex and East Lancashires. The British loss was insignificant. Hutton had a series of artillery duels, the Boers always retiring. They are fighting half-heartedly and the Free Staters are sick of the war. The Boer right first gave way, but Tucker Hamilton had a hard time on the left. The Boers served six guns well but the British worked up closer and closer, the guns meanwhile firing incessantly. When the final charge was ordered the Boers could not stand it and the rout was complete, It is impossible to ascertain the loss.

IS IT BEER?

A Mooted Question Now Agitating the Public Mind.

In Greensboro, as in many other places, a compound known as malt extract is sold under various brands and by divers persons. In fact, this spring "tonic" has come to be a favorite beverage with a nnmber of people who are afflicteed with "that tired feeling" so common about this season of the year.

There are some who say the sale of malt extract in Greensboro has greatly increased within the past eight or ten months, giving as a reason that it is nothing less than lager beer, possibly with a little flavoring thrown in to tone down the effects. If enough of the mixture be drunk it is claimed that it will inebriate, though no "horrible examples" have been pointed out. The matter is being investigated, and if it is found that the ingredients compose a fair quality of beer, or something akin, the sale of malt extract in Greensboro will be stopped.

The dealers say they buy it for malt extract and sell it under the same name, claiming that there their responsibility ceases.

DENTAL SOCIETY ADJOURNS.

Will Meet Next Year in Morehead City. New Officers.

Several interesting papers were read before the State Dental Society this morning and the discussions which followed their reading indulged in by a number of the members.

Dr. Benton read a paper on "Orthodontia." An interesting paper on "Pathology" was presented by Dr. Parker, while Dr. Harper discussed "Dental Education."

The following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year:

President, Dr. E. J. Tucker, of Roxboro.

First vice-president, Dr. W. B. Ramsey, Hickory.

Second vice-president, Dr. I. H. Davis, Oxford.

Secretary, Dr. J. S. Spurgeon, Hillsboro.

Treasurer, Dr. D. L. James, Greenville.

Essayist, Dr. N. G. Carroll, Raleigh.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in Morehead City, the date to be fixed by the executive committee.

PEARSON GETS CRAWFORD'S SEAT.

The High-Handed Robbery Effected by Only Two Majority—Pearson Spoke in His Own Behalf and Crawford Did Likewise.

A high-handed piece of political robbery was accomplished at 4 o'clock yesterday, when Richmond Pearson was given the seat to which Crawford was elected. The vote was 129 to 127. When Pearson was sworn in he was hissed.

The votes were very close. The minority resolution declaring the sitting members entitled to the seat was defeated by one vote. Mr. Jack, a Pennsylvania Republican, voted with the Democrats on both roll calls. On the first vote 15 Republicans were absent and unpaired and on the second 12 were absent and unpaired.

When the debate opened Mr. Pearson was given 50 minutes time in which to address the house in his own behalf. He had a large chart erected in the area in front of the speaker's chair, which he claimed illustrated the manner in which the black vote in his district had been suppressed.

Mr. Pearson was followed by Mr. Crawford, who defended his right to the seat in an hour's speech. Mr. Crawford declared that 200,000 in the Ninth North Carolina district were on trial today. They had a right to say who should represent them in the House. Prior to this election Mr. Crawford said no man had ever charged fraud in the ninth congressional district of North Carolina. But Mr. Pearso, he said, seldom knew defeat. He charged that Mr. Pearson had so trimmed his political sails that he had not lost a vote in a national election since 1880, when he voted for Hancock. "He voted for Cleveland twice," said Mr. Crawford, "and supported me against Senator Pritchard, when I defeated him in 1892."

Primrose & Dockstader's Latest Novelty.

On Saturday, May 12, on McAdoo's lot, corner Sycamore and Forbis streets, Primrose & Dockstader's big new minstrel company will be seen in its great canvas theatre, which is a marvel in itself as it contains all the comforts and conveniences of a modern play-house, such as private boxes, reserved orchestra chairs, uniformed ushers and attendants. The stage will be provided with all the scenery and light effects found in a first-class opera house. In fact, this novel and up-to-date theatre under canvas is equal and, in some respects, superior to many of the theatres in our larger cities.

The company numbers one hundred white artists, among whom will be found funny end men, sweet singing vocalists, a company of well-known acrobats, jugglers, song and dance artists, club swingers, a troupe of genuine Arabs, grotesque skaters and a dog and monkey circus, the latter sure to please every little one who has the price of admission. The entertainment has in fact everything that goes to make a clean and wholesome summer day's entertainment.

There will be two performances given, an afternoon and evening. Doors open at 1 and 7 p. m. Performance begins one hour later.—Adv.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL SESSION.

THE SOUTHERN COTTON SPINNERS.

In 1899 the Exports of Raw Cotton Were Nearly Ten Times That of Manufactured. No Fear of Too Many Mills, But of Not Enough Markets.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, May 10—If today's addresses are samples of what may be expected the meeting of the Southern Cotton Spinners will be one of the most successful ever held.

The convention was called to order at ten o'clock this morning by Dr. J. H. McAden, president of the association, who welcomed the delegates in a most appropriate and carefully prepared speech.

Mr. Theo. F. Search, president of the National Association of Philadelphia, then made a very concise and excellent address on "Foreign Markets for American Goods. and the Way to Develop Them." Mr. Search said: "In the calendar year 1899 the exports of raw cotton from the United States amounted to $191,167,342, while the exports of cotton cloths were only valued at $19,968,475. For every dollar's worth of cotton cloth exported last year ten dollar's worth of raw cotton was furnished to manufacturers in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe. These conditions ought to be reversed."

As a reason for this state of affairs the speaker suggested the peculiar conditions under which the mills dispose of their products, namely through commission merchants, thus the mills do not come in direct touch with the purchasers either at home or abroad, and hence know of conditions only second hand. The requirements of foreign markets as to widths, color, payments, etc., are also very important factors in the development of foreign trade.

This is an era of expansion. There need be no fear that we will ever have too many cotton mills, but rather that we shall have a market too small to receive their output.

Mr. Arthur H. Lane, former president of the New England Manufacturers' Association, next made an address on "The Production of Fine Cotton Goods by American Manufacturers." Mr. Lane confined himself to a discussion of fine finished colored goods. So much of the cost of fine goods is labor that the American mill cannot compete with the foreign unless there be a reasonable tariff, sufficient to encourage and protect him. The American designers are producing patterns as artistic as any of the foreign markets. The most important factor in the successful production of fine goods is brains and skill in organization.

Mr. Geo. B. Hiss, secretary of the association, reported 275 members, 50 of whom were received today. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Dr. J. H. McAden, of Charlotte, president; J. P. Verdery, Augusta, vice president; G. B. Hiss, Charlotte, secretary and treasurer; A. P. Rhyne, R. R. Ray, B. E. Willingham, board of governors. The session will be held in the Y. M. C. A, hall tonight.

His Past Career.

Julius Kahn, the new congressman from San Francisco, was an actor several years before he studied law, practiced at the bar and got into politics. He has faced the gallery gods in every city of the United States in his time. But he admits that he never encountered quite such a knockout as occurred to him at a Washington dinner party the other night.

The toastmaster had introduced Mr. Kahn to an audience of between 100 and 200 diners with some remarks about congress being a place where there was a good deal of acting and the suggestion that Mr. Kahn ought to feel entirely at home. The actor-congressman rose to reply and led off with the remark that he supposed the toastmaster had reference to the fact that he had passed some years of his life upon the stage.

The words were no sooner out than in a perfectly serious tone somebody at the remotest table inquired, "Whom did you drive for?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Kentucky furnished more soldiers, Confederate and Union, than any other state according to population.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Father Hogarty's Splendid Lecture on Shakespeare.

The entertainment for the benefit of St. Benedict's Catholic church, at the Academy of Music last night, was a decided success. A large audience was present and everybody was well pleased and highly entertained.

Rev. Father Hogarty's lecture on Shakespeare was very interesting to all students of literature. The speaker showed a thorough knowledge of his subject.

Mrs. J. A. DeCarr, a talented young lady of this city, gave several recitations, which were among the most pleasing features of the evening's entertainment. "How Salvador Won" captivated the audience. Her conception of how the jockey won the race was perfect, and her enunciation and acting were most artistic. She was often applauded and responded to frequent encores.

The soloists did remarkably well. Miss Grace Clary and Messrs. Z. V. Taylor and J. Wesley White charmed the audience. Their solos were rendered with much ease and grace.

Rev. Father Anthony wishes to extend his heartfelt thanks to all who assisted in making the entertainment such a brilliant success.

A SUCCESSFUL YOUNG MAN.

Judge W. N. Scales Has Just Won a Fee of $10,000.00.

The Lewiston, Idaho, Morning Tribune tells of a big mining deal, involving a quarter of a million dollars, in which a former Greensboro young man figured conspicuously. The deal referred to was the sale of the Big Buffalo mine property as the culmination of a big lawsuit.

The chief attorney for the winning side was Judge Wallace N. Scales, a son of Mrs. E. H. Scales, of Greensboro, and the Idaho paper says he received as his fee $10,000 in cash. This is quite a distinction for an attorney of Judge Scales' years and a victory of which his friends in Greensboro and this State will learn with great pleasure.

Judge Scales left Greensboro for Idaho some eight or ten years ago and rapidly rose to a position of distinction in that commonwealth. When he had been there only a few years he was elected solicitor and later judge, retiring from the bench to resume the practice of his profession.

Bryan Nominated by the Populists.

Bryan and Towne were nominated at Sioux Falls and Barker and Donnelly at Cincinnati, yesterday. Senator Allen made the speech nominating Bryan saying:

"He embodies in his political convictions, in all his life, all that is good in an Americaa citizen, all that is pure and loyal, all that the most exacting could desire; a statesman of ripe experience, a philosopher, a patriot without a peer on this or any other continent. Peerless, bold, determined, thoroughly united to the interests of the great mass of his countrymen, he would make and will make an ideal candidate for the exalted office of President of these United States.

Took No Chances.

Samuel Clough, who edited The New England Almanac at the very beginning of the eighteenth century, was a good example of a prophet who intends to make no mistakes.

"Perhaps," says he, predicting the weather from Jan. 15 to the 22d, 1702, "it will be very cold weather if it frese by the fireside or on the sunny side of a fence at noon."

In April he hazards: "Perhaps wet weather if it rains. Now fair weather if the sun shines. Windy or calm."

And in July he ventures a small advertisement for the town of his residence:

If now the weather do prove fair,
People to Cambridge do repair.

The Voice In High Altitudes.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus, in this country, among the Indians living on the plateaus between the ranges of the Andes, at an elevation of from 10,000 to 14,000 feet, the men have voices like the women and the women like the children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

THE DENTISTS ENTERTAINED.

A BRIGHT AND HAPPY OCCASION.

Visitors Welcomed to the State Normal and Industrial College---A Creditable Play by Representatives of the Literary Societies---Odd Fellows Among the Fortunate Guests.

The entertainment at the State Normal and Industrial College last night was attended by the members of the State Dental Society in a body, a number of Odd Fellows who were stopping over on their return from the Grand Lodge meeting at Winston, and many citizens of Greensboro. The occasion was a most happy one throughout and was thoroughly enjoyed by every one so fortunate as to be present. At no place in the State do North Carolinians feel more at home than at their State Normal and Industrial College, where every one connected with the institution vies with each other in extending a cordial greeting to all visitors.

The exercises of the evening were opened with a few words from Miss Woodfin Chambers, who, as the representative of the Adelphian and Cornelian Literary Societies, welcomed the visitors in a most gracious manner. Her sentences were beautifully expressed and conveyed a humorous meaning, the speaker taking advantage of the presence of the dentists and Odd Fellows to make a few witty remarks at their expense.

The principal feature of the entertainment consisted of the play, "Pygmalion and Galatea," with the following caste of characters:

Pygmalion, a sculptor...Miss Folsom
Chrysos, an art patron..Miss Brown
Lencippe, a soldier.....Miss Conrad
Mimos, Pygmalion's slave.....
.....Miss Morton
Agesimos, Chrysos' slave.....
.....Miss Harrison
Galatea, an animated statue...
.....Miss Laura Sanford
Cynisca, Pygmalion's wife.....
.....Miss Ida Wharton
Daphne, Chrysos' wife.....
.....Miss Mary S. Monroe
Myrime, Pygmalion's slave.....
.....Miss Sue Nash

Each young lady seemed peculiarly adapted to her particular character, and the three acts were played with realistic effect.

At the conclusion of the first act Miss Minnie Jamison sang, in a charming manner, "Where Roses Gleam." At other intervals the Glee Club, composed of twelve young ladies, rendered appropriate selections.

After "The Old North State" had been sung by the school and audience, President McIver spoke a few words of welcome, saying it was always a pleasure to have the people of North Carolina visit their institution.

Dr. E J. Tucker, of Roxboro, president of the State Dental Society, responded to President McIver, assuring him and the young women of the pleasure it afforded the dentists to be with them. Speaking to his associates, he said: "We have indeed come to the 'City of Fowers,' and tonight we are convinced that we are in God's own floral garden." In eloquent and polished words he spoke of the ennobling influence of the queenly womanhood of our land, and expressed his appreciation of this institution for her preparation for the varied duties of life.

In behalf of the visiting Odd Fellows Mr. N. Jacobi, of Wilmington, called on Mr C. M. Busbee, of Raleigh, a past grand sire of the world in the order, to make a few remarks. Mr. Busbee responded briefly, expressing the thanks of the representatives of the I. O. O. F. present for the very enjoyable entertainment. He was lavish in his praise of the great work being accomplished by the State Normal and Industrial College and congratulated the management on the splendid results obtained. Speaking of the use of President McIver's name in connection with the presidency of the University of North Carolina, he said: "His place is here and I do not believe that Dr. McIver would leave you, girls."

After the exercises had been concluded a short time was spent in social conversation, a number of students and visitors taking advantage of the opportunity to greet friends and acquaintances

PRESIDENT TUCKER'S ADDRESS

BEFORE STATE DENTAL SOCIETY.

Matters Pertaining to the Interest of the Profession Discussed in an Interesting Manner--Frogress of the Past Reviewed. Unprofessionalism Deprecated.

GENTLEMEN OF THE NORTH CAROLINA DENTAL SOCIETY:

The circumstances under which I have been called to preside over this honorable and scientific body fills me with a profound sense of responsibility, but with nothing like shirking apprehensions. I assume the duties assigned me in obedience to the expression of your will, answerable only for a diligent, faithful and fearless exercise of the best powers within me I express the gratitude, I hope, of an honest heart for the confidence reposed in me. But a true realization of this fact only adds weight to my obligations. The short time for preparation fills me with grave fears for the right performance of my duties. In my weakness sustain me by your strength.

My Fellows: I greet you with that fraternal spirit of love which should and does characterize professional inspiration. I am truly glad to see so many of the profession here. I am made to feel and realize more each year this wonderful privilege of assembling ourselves together for council, and though we may appear divided on questions, we are not. We seek the good of mankind, therefore we are in accord. With the close of this session another year's history of our work is written in the records of our society. Have we made progress? We shall see when we have made known our discoveries, inventions, failures and successes in practice.

This is where we show for what we labor, fall in love with our work, whatever may be the character, and we shall succeed. The pride we take in our work is the stimulus to endurance in this world of anguish and toil. It is said that "back of this pride we recognize human vanity that delights in its own cunning and skill, rejoices in its own attainments, is puffed up with a consciousness of its own knowledge and power." And while this is true, we say it is not objectionable, for under divine guidance this is the stimulus to creative activity, tending upward in growth and strength, that makes perfection possible. With this thought in mind we shall press forward to the goal which will make us eminently practical and successful.

Without criticism I will offer a few suggestions for the benefit, I hope, of the society:

One suggestion as to the discussion of papers. We often have papers prepared with much care, read before the society and passed without discussion. It often occurs that no one prepares a paper on any subject but the chairman of that committee, and he does not like to discuss the merits of his own paper, and no one opens the discussion, so it is passed. This should not be. We should have a full discussion of every section on the program, and to do this I suggest that the chairman of each committee appoint one man on his committe to open the discussion with a five or ten-minute talk on the paper presented, or the subject if there is no paper. In this way no subject would be passed without discussion. I should like to see more papers by the members of the society. When we join the society we virtually promise to make it a matter of conscience to take part in the meetings and do what we can for the betterment and interest of the society, and we should not shirk, but do our duty along this line.

Another suggestion is, that matters of business go before the executive committee and be eliminated from the sessions of the main body, except for ratification or rejection. So much valuable time of the society is taken in discussing matters that might be settled by this committee.

Now here is a matter I regret very much to bring to your notice. There is a wave of unprofessionalism among the profession in many sections of the State. This is confined to towns and "cities" to a large extent and is to be very much deplored. I cannot call to mind anything more demoralizing and contrary to the teachings and purpose of our profession than this. I earnestly hope that if there are any members of this society (which I hope is not the case) given to this departure from true professional ethics, that they will turn to our Code of Ethics and read Article 2, Sections 1, 2, 3 and 5, study these sections carefully, imbibe them, make them a part of their lives, and never be guilty of unprofessional conduct. No man can build up a practice and hold it by cutting prices, speaking disparagingly of his fellow-practioners, making big display, advertising, etc. Empiricism must be left out of our profession; it is too noble for such. It is with the kindest feeling and for the benefit of the profession thnt I speak of this. We cannot afford to be guilty of such conduct. We should have more regard for the fraternity to which we belong. For it is divine and noble in conception, grand and beneficent in purpose, glorious, wonderful and rich in achievements, and we should love and honor it.

PRESIDENT TUCKER'S ADDRESS.

I cannot and will not attempt to discuss dentistry as an ancient science and art. The fact is that nothing of value comes to us from antiquity. So as an art it is modern, and wholly modern as a science. It has been recreated, had a new birth as a profession, and now stands on a triune foundation, sure and certain.

THE COLLEGE, THE JOURNAL AND THE SOCIETY.

In its growth as a profession, we see these three great elements in its true new birth attending its development and wonderful progress in every branch. Rob it of these sources of life and the honest practitioner becomes homeless, his life is shut against the high and holy sentiments like patriotism and kindness of heart to mankind. We should cultivate a love for our society, it is a means of inspiration and education where thoughts and approved methods are presented, where the highest standard of professional moral ethics are held aloft to the young and inexperienced practitioner, enjoining love and desire for right living. So if we carry out the true spirit of professionalism taught in our meetings, slanders, jealousies and envy will pass away as the mist before the bright summer's sun.

Our society must grow in numbers. The new graduates will join us and we will welcome them, not looking on them as rivals, but as brothers and coworkers, giving to us and we to them some message for the benefit of humanity. In this lies the future of our profession. Direct the enthusiasm and energy of the young into channels profitable to all. Let us delight in the true spirit of professionalism, that which ennobles, dignifies and honors.

Character and culture make the true professional man. No class of men realize more fully than the dental surgeon that the large things are made up of the small ones, and without looking well to the small things our great operations would become ultimate failures. In these meetings we gather the rich experience of our associates. The man who isolates himself from the profession will stop growing and lead a purposeless, selfish life. To make ourselves pleasant and useful is to make our lives beneficial and interesting. This embraces man's whole duty and existence. Success means that we do our best every time. There can be no substitute for sincerity and earnestness in dental practice. This divine spark, when kindled into a flame by perseverance and zeal, will cause us to realize the pleasure and profit there is in our calling. Though our ability be great or small, few of us, if any, have lived up to the knowledge we possess. So we need the stimulating influence of one another to bring out this latent power. The dental surgeon should be gentle, refined, considerate, and withal, cleanly.

The dental office of today must be well kept, neatly furnished, clean and contain a good library. Dentistry is a science and the dental surgeon must be a scientific man.

The horizon of scientific attainments has been lifted and extended until only a powerful glass can trace its outlines. The modern dental surgeon has become learned, accomplished and skilled until now he who would command the confidence of his brethren and the public must have more than a general knowledge of the department in which he is engaged. So then dentistry does not only mean that we know how to extract, make and fill teeth, but it means more than that. It means that we must be skilled in all that pertains to our profession and beneficent in that which pertains to mankind. We must be scientists, inventors and discoverers. Why not? Can't the dental surgeon lay claim to as great discoveries as the world enjoys? Think of the wonderful discoveries of Drs. Wells and Morton! What discovery or invention is comparable to this by which the knife of the surgeon is steeped in the waters of forgetfulness and the deepest furrow in the knotted brow of agony is forever smoothed away. Anaesthesia by ether and nitrous oxide gas was given to humanity by the dental profession. The invention of the surgical engine can be justly claimed by that prince of dental sergeons, Dr. Bronwell. By the use of the engine much of surgery becomes simplified and almost painless. These discoveries and inventions of the past, how wonderful!

Is it not pardonable, then, to dream of the grand possibilities of the future? We want painless dentistry, may we not confidently hope for it? It is calculated that the conductivity of impressions to the brain is about eighteen thousand inches per second, and if we can get something that will cut faster, will we not have painless dentistry? We now have a surgical engine that drives the instrument to about eighteen thousand revolutions per minute. Can it not be perfected? And who can say that the dental surgeon will not invent apparatus for separating water into its two gases and furnishing fuel for his office in a cheap and clean manner? Yes, even more, by this means some day furnish fuel for the large cities. Call me a dreamer if you will; I do not object. With pride I think on the progress in every line of our profession, especially in porcelain inlay work. May we not hope soon for a plastic filling material that will be durable and approach in perfection the natural organs of mastication? Surely we may if the wonderful progress in our calling during the closing years of the century is as marvelous as it has been great. I venture the prophecy that the achievements of the past are small, compared with what the future will be.

Then may we be inspired to labor steadfastly and unceasingly to improve the opportunities of the present and reach the highest ideal of professional development. With divine inspiration work.

"Dare to be honest, dare to be true,
For you have a work no other can do;
Do it so nobly, so bravely so well,
Men and angels will hasten the story to tell."

Bare feet are almost preferable to some shoes. The kind that it is necessary to break in generally make a man break out and say things. We had made purposely for comfort a lot of men's fine kid shoes in lace and congress. The prices are right.

Farms "Dirt Cheap."

From the New York Advertiser.

Connecticut farms are dirt cheap. At Bethlehem, in that State, a farm of sixty acres, with good buildings, sold a few days ago at auction, for $1,600, a price which would not replace the barns. Another farm of twenty acres in the same town, bought twenty years ago for $1,000, was sold at auction for $85. Farms in Northern New Jersey are in about the same condition, and anybody who wants to own a few acres of Jersey soil can buy it there cheaply enough.

"I had stomach trouble twenty years and gave up hope of being cured till I began to use Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It has done me so much good I call it the savior of my life," writes W. R. Wilkinson, Albany, Tenn. It digests what you eat. Howard Gardner.

The woman who puts her head in the lion's mouth, seems the type of reckless women. But she isn't. The really reckless woman is the one who braves Nature day after day, by neglect of the health of the delicate womanly organs. "Crime and punishment blossom on one stem" says Emerson. When the cycle of self-neglect is complete it includes the pains and sufferings which are the inevitable penalties inflicted by outraged Nature. The drain which today is counted an inconvenience, becomes in succeeding days a horrible and offensive stigma. The passing depression of an hour grows into a permanent melancholy.

The timely use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will save young women from suffering, as it will cure those who through neglect have become martyrs after marriage. No woman who suffers with backache, pain in the side, bearing down pains, debilitating drains, ulceration or inflammation, should delay another day the use of "Favorite Prescription." Its use helps every woman and heals ninety-eight per cent. of all who give it a fair trial. It contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

"I was tempted to try your medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother," writes Mrs. Flora Arn, of Dallas, Jackson Co., Mo. "At an early stage of married life I was greatly bothered with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me very weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so thin there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' After he saw the wonderful effects of that one he got me two more, and after I used those up there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly. I believe I weigh twice as much as I did then, and can do all of my work. I think I owe all praise to Dr. Pierce and his wonderful curative medicines."

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are specially adapted to the needs of delicate women.

WHAT OF THE NEW PROJECTILE?

With some degree of eagerness we have been waiting for some additional information concerning the new shell that is said to have been invented by a naval officer of the United States. The facts regarding this new death bearing instrument were given in the executive session of the Senate Tuesday, and the armor plate question was discussed in secret session on the following day, but some talk regarding the invention leaked out. It seems that for the present the public must content itself with the mere statement that a new shell, the most powerful yet known, has been invented.

The shell is said to be far superior to anything manufactured by this or any other government, and its power of penetration so great that no armor now manufactured has sufficient power to resist it. It seems that some tests of this wonderful new missive of destruction have already been made, and that nothing withstands it. It is fired from a high power gun and penetrates ordinary armor like a bullet from a Krag-Jorgenson rifle penetrates a piece of white pine plank. The navy department is zealously guarding all the details concerning its construction. And well they may, if the invention is what is claimed for it. Any one of the European governments would give fabulous sums for such an invention if they had assurance that the secret would remain undiscovered by others.

"War, he sung, is only trouble,
Honor but an empty bubble;
Never ending, still beginning,
Fighting still and still destroying."

And from the day of Alexander's feast, war has been never ending, still beginning, fighting still and still destroying. There has been progress in the means of destruction, and to keep up with this progress now is like to bankrupt the world. So soon as a new shell is made, straightway armor to withstand it is made. Then the shell inventors get their heads together again and beat the armor people, and in turn are beaten by them. If this new shell is a reality, a counter move may be expected by the armor makers. Then all the expensive armaments and implements become as so much junk, and the people must foot the bills for a new outfit. It would be well if the inventors would direct their attention from this line of work.

The recent discovery of tremendous frauds in the post office department in Cuba indicates that the process of Americanizing the island is going on rapidly.

J. B. Duke was yesterday re-elected president of the American Tobacco Company.

A Decided Opposition.

On one occasion, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, when Booker T. Washington was in Chicago, he stopped for a day in one of the hotels. He was pointed out to William, an old waiter, who had been in the hotel for a long time. William was delighted to get a glimpse of the great man of his race and was never tired of telling about it after that. One of the regular boarders is a stanch friend of William and a liberal "tipper."

"William," said the boarder next morning, putting on a serious face, "I met Mr. Washington yesterday, and I asked him what he thought of 'tipping.' He is opposed to it."

The boarder stood with his hand insinuatingly in his change pocket. William's face fell and settled into despairing gloom.

"Well, boss," the waiter said, shaking his head emphatically, "if dat is de posishun of Mistah Washington I'se unalt'ably opposed to it."

BURR'S FIGHT AGAINST FATE

Just as Success Returned the Crushing Sorrows of His Life Came.

"Aaron Burr was 60 years old when he resolved once more to battle with fortune," writes William Perrine in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Going quietly into New York, he opened an office for the practice of law and in a fortnight had earned $2,000 in fees. But hardly had he written to his daughter about his luck when there came from South Carolina the news that her beautiful boy, who had been the idol of the ambitious statesman, was dead.

"But there was in reserve for Burr a still heavier blow. Toward the close of the year 1812 Theodosia Allston made preparations to visit her father in New York. Passage was engaged on the schooner the Patriot for Theodosia, her physician and her maid, and the lovely woman was radiant with the expectation of meeting her father within the next five or six days. The Patriot sailed from Charleston out into the ocean in Christmas week, and not a vestige of her was ever again seen, and it is surmised — but nothing is known as to her fate—that she foundered off the coast of Hatteras.

"Day after day and long after all hope had been abandoned there might be seen on the Battery at New York the lonely and unhappy father, peering far down the bay as if he were scanning the sea for a sail. Of his agony Aaron Burr gave the world but little view. He had schooled himself in the habit of never exhibiting his emotions, but in one of his letters he declared that he felt as if he had been severed from the human race."

VIOLIN MUSIC.

Its Peculiar and Varied Effect on Wild Animals.

The violin was used recently with interesting results in experiments with all sorts of living creatures. First it was played before a tarantula. She paid no attention whatever to it. But a nest of scorpions became intensely excited and wiggled frantically.

A cobra showed remarkable susceptibility. She was sleeping soundly when the experimenters approached her, but the first tone awakened her, and she raised her head. As the music swelled she continued to rise till she was standing straight as a pillar, supported only by her tail. Every change in tempo and pitch had effect. The pizzicato made her puff her entire body, swift waltz music caused her to erect her ugly hood to its fullest size, and a sudden dissonance made her wind and twist her body as if she were in real agony.

The polar bear tried to dance to the sounds of the instrument. At least he swayed his body rhythmically and made a rumbling sound which portrayed deep measure. The grizzlies and the lions moved their paws and the lions their tails also in time with the music. It happened that a string snapped, with its peculiar, sharp smack, just as the player had begun to perform before the cage of a hyena. That poor animal at once hunched its back up, drew its tail between its legs and crouched, trembling, in the farthest corner of the cage. The elephant and the ostrich were delighted by soft tones and appeared to suffer true distress from loud and sharp notes.—New York Press.

Teaching a Horse Tricks.

You can, with patience, teach your horse politeness—to bow to an audience, to say "No" with more or less decision, to kiss you or even laugh. The animal may be taught to bow by tapping him on the back with a whip. He bends his head in trying to avoid the annoyance. The trainer ceases the tapping, caresses him, then resumes it till he repeats the bow. He is again caressed and presented with a carrot or something of which he is particularly fond. At last it comes about that he "bows" upon any movement of the whip toward his back.

To teach a horse to say "No" a pin is fastened to the butt of the whip. A slight scratch is given to the horse's withers, about where the collar would be. At this he shakes his head and soon learns to shake it whenever he sees the butt of the whip coming near his withers.

The trainer teaches the animal "to kiss" by feeding him with apples from his mouth, gradually lessening the size of the apples till the horse does the trick without any, or he puts salt, of which horses are very fond, on his cheek, and the animal naturally licks it off.

He is taught to laugh by gently forcing the butt of the whip in at the side of his mouth, then prying his mouth open with it. Caresses and carrots follow, till at last the slightest motion of the butt toward his mouth makes him open it. He does not really laugh; he grins.—Good Words.

No Use For Him.

"No," said the practical politician, "we don't want him figuring in the campaign."

"But he is exceedingly well informed."

"I doubt it. He has put in all his time studying the tariff and finance and the United States constitution. He doesn't know anything about politics."—Washington Star.

WORKED IT BOTH WAYS.

A Neat Swindling Scheme That Fleeced Bucket Shop Patrons.

"If the real inside workings of the average bucket shop were laid bare," said a telegraph operator who has had much experience in such establishments, "the revelation would open the eyes of the young donkeys who imagine they can beat the game. Just to illustrate the point I'll tell you a little story.

"Some time ago there were two rival bucket shops in a certain southern city, supposed to be run by northern operators. Business was a little slow, and it was evident that the speculative element was inclined to be suspicious of both establishments. One day the manager of one of the concerns hunted up a young fellow who had more money than brains and, handing him $50, asked him, as a special favor, to go over to the other house and make such and such a play. 'It's a private speculation of my own,' he said, 'and I have a straight tip, but I can't very well place the money myself on account of my connection with —— & Co. If I did they'd get suspicious right away.'

"The young idiot supposed, of course, that he had struck a bonanza—one bucket shop man playing against another! It must be a sure thing! So he not only placed the $50 as requested, but played the tip hard himself, and so did all his friends, whom he promptly let into the secret. Needless to say, they were all eventually skinned out of every cent they put in, but the remarkable part of the story is that the same tactics were worked back and forth by both managers on at least a dozen different occasions. Each time it was done they gathered in a lot of new clients and made a big haul. It developed not long afterward that the two bucket shops were run by the same people."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

HE ROUSED JEFFERSON.

Why the Hotel Porter Waked Jefferson From His Sleep.

Leslie's Weekly tells this story about Joseph Jefferson: A number of years ago he played a one night engagement in a small Indiana town, appearing in his favorite part of Rip Van Winkle. In the hotel at which he stopped was an Irishman "recently landed," who acted as porter and general assistant. Judged by the deep and serious interest which he took in the house, he might have been clerk, lessee and proprietor, rolled into one.

At about 6 o'clock in the mornjng Mr. Jefferson was startled by a violent thumping on his door. When he struggled into consciousness and realized that he had left no "call" order at the office, he was naturally indignant. But his sleep was spoiled for that morning, so he arose, and soon after appeared before the clerk. "See here," he demanded of that individual, "why was I called at this unearthly hour?"

"I don't know, sir," answered the clerk, "I'll ask Mike."

The Irishman was summoned. Said the clerk: "Mike, there was no call for Mr. Jefferson. Why did you disturb him?"

Taking the clerk by the lapel of the coat, the Hiberian led him to one side and said, in a mysterious whisper: "He were shnoring loike a horse, sor, and Oi'd heerd the b'ys say as how he were onct afther shlaping fur twinty years, so Oi sez to mesilf, sez Oi, 'Moike, it's a cooming onto him ag'in, and it's yer juty to git the craythers out o' yer house instantly!'"

Had Driven Mules Before.

Daniel C. Pomeroy, once a prominent New York criminal lawyer, in his early life was a stage driver on the old Butterfield line and gleaned his legal education largely upon the box seat of his coach or while change of horses was being made at the stations. He was associated with others in the defense of one Mrs. McCarthy on her trial at Utica for the murder of a man named Hall of Ogdensburg, who was killed by a bullet from her revolver which was aimed at another man. Judge Doolittle presided at the trial and seemed to believe in the prisoner's guilt. The judge was bitter, and so was Pomeroy. The latter made an objection and insisted upon it rather strenuously.

"Mr. Pomeroy," said the judge, "I am not a horse and can't be driven."

"Well, your honor, I learned in my early experience to drive mules, and I will try to keep up my former reputation."—Philadelphia Call.

Going by the Eye.

Unless one has some other sort of knowledge to contradict it it is natural to accept the evidence of the eye. Therefore the answer which a teacher recently received from her class of small children was not altogether surprising.

"Which is farther away," she asked, "England or the moon?"

"England!" the children answered quickly.

"England?" she questioned. "What makes you think that?"

"'Cause we can see the moon, and we can't see England," answered one of the brightest of the class.—Youth's Companion.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. WINE OF CARDUI

A LITTLE DOES MUCH.

BOONE, IOWA, Dec. 14.

No tongue can tell what I have endured in the past ten years with my monthly sickness. While suffering untold agony, a friend called and recommended Wine of Cardui. I sent for a bottle, and Oh! what relief. After the first dose I began to feel better and have had no pain since.

MRS. GRACE LAMPHERE.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Wine of Cardui not only cures but it acts AT ONCE. Here is a case of ten years' standing, and yet one single dose made the sufferer feel better, and stopped the pain. The Wine goes straight to the seat of the trouble. It acts directly upon the menstrual and genital organs. Its action is not violent, and it does not force a result. It simply gives Nature that little assistance that the sufferer's system lacks. A single disorder in the feminine organs spreads many disorders all over the body, and when the Wine cures the source, all the other ills vanish as a matter of course. A woman can be her own physician and cure herself at home. Local examinations are largely things of the past—the obnoxious custom is no longer necessary. Wine of Cardui is the only perfectly safe and sure vegetable Wine made to-day for the cure of "female troubles".

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

A Painter In a Swamp.

Wishing to make a study of a portion of the swamp near El Akewa, in Egypt, I set up my easel on the edge of a pool where the ground seemed a little firmer than the rest. Quickly becoming engrossed in my work, I did not notice that I was slowly sinking until I found that my sketching stool had nearly disappeared and my legs were imbedded in the mud almost up to my knees. With the breaking of the surface crust the black slime gave out most horrible odors, and small stinging flies, liberated from the earth, quickly covered me, crawling up my legs and arms, while the mosquitoes, combining in the attack, eventually drove me from my half finished work.

Though really quite clear, the water was so alive with mosquito grubs as to appear almost opaque. By thousands every moment the grubs would come to the surface, either crawling up the rushes or floating, and the outer shells soon cracking in the sun left the little insects at liberty. A few seconds sufficed to dry their wings and give them life and strength, and then with hum and buzz they joined their brothers in the air, hovering in thousands like a cloud of black smoke over the stagnant pond from which they sprang. Then I was discovered—a rare bonne bouche for those parts—and a rapid retreat became imperative.—R. Talbot Kelly in Century.

DOES IT PAY TO BUY CHEAP?

A cheap remedy for conghs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. For sale by Grissom & Ford ham.

That is the way all druggists sel Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic for Chills and Malaria. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating tonics. Price 50c

NIGHT BELLS.

Various Kinds of Help to Be Invoked Through Their Aid.

Of night bells of one sort and another there will be found in cities many. There is, for instance, the drug store night bell, which is old and familiar. In large cities there are nowadays more drug stores than formerly that keep open all night, but the drug store night bell is still an institution. Inside the window there is a light so placed that its illumination serves at once to give a glow to some highly colored jar of water—time honored emblem of the apothecary—and make that serve as a sign and to show to those who are seeking it, when they shall have come near, the location of the bell.

Likewise is the undertaker's night bell old and familiar and to be found in numbers, with a light so placed within as to reveal it plainly.

A peculiarly modern night bell is the plumber's night bell, for whose coming into existence there are two reasons—one the multiplication in cities, for the equipment of dwellings in accordance with modern ideas of comfort, of pipes and plumbing of all sorts, for steam heat and water and gas, and so the multiplication of emergencies arising out of the use of them; the other being the modern way of not putting things off till tomorrow, of following always a beaten track in doing things, but of being ready if called upon for work at any time, day or night.

The night bell that probably is to be found in most limited number and then only in great maritime cities is the night bell of the wrecking company. Even in this big town there is perhaps but one such night bell, but there is at least one, which may be found placed in the wall outside of a wrecking company's office, in a waterside street, with a painted sign on the wall beside it, in the usual familiar words, "Night bell," a place where one can go to get help for vessels in distress by night as well as by day.—New York Sun.

No Use For a Throne.

Napoleon Bonaparte is quoted in The Century as saying to Dr. O'Meara at St. Helena:

"If I was in England now and the French nation was to offer me the throne again, I would not accept of it because if I was to do so I would be obliged to turn bourreau (executioner). I would be obliged to cut off the heads of thousands to keep myself upon it, which would not be pleasing to me. Oceans of blood must be shed to keep me there. No, no; I have made enough of noise already in the world; perhaps more than any other man will make; perhaps too much. I am getting old and only want retirement. What could I do in France? Alone, to set myself against all the powers of Europe. Madness!"

Vegetable Ivory.

In the forests of the Pacific slope in Ecuador abounds the species of palm which bears the nuts known as "vegetable ivory." The nuts are exceedingly hard and white. Germany takes two-thirds of the product, and the rest goes to the United States, France and England. The harvest is in the rainy season, and great rafts loaded with the nuts are sent down the swollen rivers. Those engaged in the industry are Indians and mixed races. The unpeeled nuts bring, in the native markets, about 60 cents for 100 pounds.

Rat Tail Tendons.

Among the many materials for sewing up wounds are the strong sutures that can be obtained from the tail of the rat. By proper manipulation a bundle of five or six tendons per tail can be obtained and can be used as they are, being easily threaded.

Lead Pencils of Old.

Ancient writers mention the use of lead and graphite for ruling papyrus, and pencils fashioned rather crudely in the manner of those now used were made in the sixteenth century, the graphite coming from the Borrowdale mine at Cumberland, England.—Chicago Chronicle.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

Unredeemed Bank Notes.

It frequently occurs that officials of national banks retain the first notes issued by the bank as souvenirs. If these notes are never brought into circulation and are never presented to the government for redemption, the government is that much richer. The records of the redemption division show that there has not been an instance since national banks were first organized where the entire circulation of any bank was fully redeemed, and there is today a considerable fund in the treasury to that account.—Boston Globe.

He Obeyed the Judge.

Over a score of years ago Judge Fitzgerald was appointed to the bench of the district that includes Pima and Cochise counties, in Arizona. He found on coming to Tucson that formality was almost unknown in the courtroom. If the days were warm, the attorneys and attendants dispensed with coats. This to him appeared particularly disrespectful. He announced that smoking in the courtroom would not be tolerated and that coats must be worn under pain of the court's displeasure. The grand jury was called. Among the jurors summoned was a brawny miner, who appeared in his usual costume, a dark blue shirt and overalls.

"What do you mean," thundered the magistrate, "by appearing in this courtroom in your shirt sleeves? Where is your coat?"

"At home, judge," mildly returned the juror.

"Then go and get it! No, not a word, sir!" glaring down upon the man as he attempted to speak. "Go home and get your coat, sir, or I'll commit you for contempt!"

The miner went silently out. He didn't return that day nor the next, and the judge, after issuing a bench warrant for him, swore in another juror. About two weeks thereafter the original miner, dressed as the court demanded, again stepped within Judge Fitzgerald's range of vision. To the irate magistrate he tendered the explanation that his home and coat were both in Harshaw mountains, near the Mexican border, over 100 miles away, and that he had but obeyed the orders of his honor in going home after his coat.—Arizona Graphic.
